Support health 'campus'

I can think of no better use for available land at March Air Reserve Base than the large-scale health care campus described in your article "March's future" (Sept. 27).

The team assembled for this endeavor understands that our area needs a one-stop medical complex to meet the needs of an entire family, from infancy through senior status.

The March Healthcare Development will provide a vehicle for job growth within the expanding health care industry. By partnering with educational institutions, the March Healthcare Development will help meet our growing demand for physicians, nurses, and other health care providers while creating an innovative, efficient, and convenient place for them to meet the health and wellness needs of this region.

With unemployment and foreclosure rates reaching new heights, it is time to move the area forward. I support the efforts to bring vital services to our area with a large medical campus that will provide new businesses, jobs, and state-of-the-art health care for the rapidly growing population.
